

“Dreams”

I held you close again last night
In the vast imagination of my sleep
Just you and me
With no place to be
We danced around in black and white
And in my arms you spent the night

Why is it only in my dreams
That my life has all it needs
And the possibilities are always endless
Why is it only in my sleep
That the world can live in peace
And all around not a soul is friendless

But now reality is creeping in
Don't know where to begin
Maybe I'm just wanting a little bit more
Than this world
This world has to give

Why is it only in my dreams
That my life has all it needs
And the possibilities are always endless
Why is it only in my sleep
That the world can live in peace
And all around not a soul is friendless

Why is it only in my dreams
That my life has all it needs
And the possibilities are always endless
Why is it only in my sleep
That the world can live in peace
And all around not a soul is friendless

I held you close again last night
In the vast imagination of my sleep
